Prototypes' Philosophy
Prototypes recognizes that women in recovery often face multiple problems—physical, emotional, social, relationship, financial or life skills—that must all be treated in order for rehabilitation to be successful. We are the recognized leader in providing integrated services including mental health and medical services.

The solution is here.
When it comes to substance abuse and its associated trauma, we understand your pain. We know where it comes from and what it costs you. But please take heart and know that it is possible to break destructive patterns and live a free and independent life.

As an innovator in the recovery community for over 28 years, Prototypes has operated programs in Southern California that have helped thousands of women achieve sober, productive and healthy lifestyles.

Prototypes offers a safe haven for women to build the essential life skills to overcome substance abuse, mental illness and domestic violence.
